The Grecian Kaiju

by DracoTtitan

Category: Percy Jackson and the Olympians, Ultraman
Genre: Adventure, Sci-Fi
Language: English
Characters: Percy J.
Status: In-Progress
Published: 2016-04-12 07:26:12
Updated: 2016-04-12 07:26:12
Packaged: 2016-04-27 18:22:54
Rating: T
Chapters: 1
Words: 3,307
Publisher: www.fanfiction.net
Summary: Banish for the paranoid god king, Perseus live his new on the planet Boris. When the greeks are dragged to his home in need, he decides to help. Read as they journey and face many foe, both old and new. I don't own either the Percy Jackson series or Ultraman

The Grecian Kaiju

Here is my second fanfic that is not Naruto. I do not own either Percy Jackson characters or any kaiju from the Ultraman universe. Enjoy

"Talking"

'Thinking'

Scene change

"Kaiju Talking"

Prologue: The Banished is Found

The planet Boris has a mostly rock terrain, with sparce forests and large bodies of water spread across the surface. Should a spacecraft ever land, they would think this to be a desolate world without life until they'd feel the earth shake. From below the ground, a beast with a brown segemented body with rows of serrated teeth that would drawf most human building surface with a squeeling roar. As the telesdon, as the humans of this Earth knows the kaiju, finish surfacing a trumpeting roar echos behind it. The owner of the roar is black kaiju with armor-like plates on its chest and stomach, three horns on its head with its nose horn pointing forward and a spike on each elbow. This kaiju is known as a gomora however, unlike the normal yellow eyes and red stripe, this one sea green eyes and the stripes on its head horn glow green.

'Was hoping for an angross,' if one could listen to its mind, the voice would define itself as male, 'even a juran flower would be better a telesdon.' As the telesdon shriek and charge, the bull gomora takes a stance akin to sumo wrestlers while snorting, 'Oh well, a meal's a meal.' With it close enough, the telesdon jumps with its teeth first and receives a fist to its nostril. As it flinches back, the gomora twists and slams his tail into the telesdon's ribcage. As a loud snap is heard and his foe howl in pain, the gomora grabs the distracted kaiju from behind and slowly collaspes its throat, 'Too easy now hurry up and die, you're my meal for the evening.'

As the telesdon's flailing slowly stops, the gomora reaches to its face and twists its head one eighty degrees around causing the body to go limp. With a loud echoing roar of victory, the gomora tears into the still warm carcass before him, 'Would you be proud of now Mother, Father...Chiron?' He thinks back to when he was the human Perseus Jackson, he couldn't believe how guillible he was to believe the grecian god king. As soon as Zeus had gotten his Master Bolt, he began spotting off many false charges and conspiracies before he took everything away. However, the past two and a half millenium has taught him that he shouldn't have been surprise.

Zeus has had the other gods betrayed him before, not even including the golden net. Perseus realized this after the first couple of centuries and, instead, felt anger at his father for giving Zeus a reason to banish him before that to vanish. Remembering the pain of his transition to this dimenson, he remebers dying before his soul enters a still developing egg of a gomorasaurus. Growing up as a kaiju was a challenge for it was like if he was a newly hatch crocodile. Not only did the predators want to eat him, but his kind tried to kill him.

Once he had gotten past the hatchling stage, all he could remember was fighting. Looking over the various scars, some from his very own clutchmates, he realized human fraility once again. So he always made sure human vessels headed back with a slight maniplation. Hearing a snarling from behind, Percy turns to face a blue and gray lizard like kaiju with a red face. 'A golza huh,' Percy glances at the partially eaten carcass before trumpeting a challenge which a roar like a mutant big cat answering back, 'guess it's time to work off that meal.'

Planet Earth: Mount Olmyphus, Throne Room

Athena looks at Artemis as the Council took a seat on there throne, "So, we found a way to save Thalia however, Zeus won't like it." "Why wouldn't I?" the black hair, blue lightning god drawls out with narrowed as the two virgin goddesses fidget. Artemis walks forward with a sigh, "We need the blood of a demigod of water in order to do such." As the rest of the council yell at each other, Zeus closes his eyes realizing why the two were worried. After banishing Perseus Jackson last year, they soon found out that Luke Castellan was the thief.

War almost erupted between the two brothers once it was discovered and it was only by Hestia that it was prevented. However he couldn't retract the banishment for he called upon the name Chaos to remove his nephew from mortal history itself. This meant that if Perseus was returned, he would have no way to protect himself from the monsters and he couldn't do that to him. Opening his eyes and seeing the questioning gaze of the others, Zeus clear his throat and glance at his two daughter, "While I can't unbanish him, I believe that we can enter the land ourselves so the quest is how do we find him?" "We think we found him," Athena looks nervously at an indifferent Artemis, although one could see the glee in the huntress's eyes, "but this is the part that you'll not like, you either Poseidon."

The sea god opens mouth to say how unbelievable it was when Athena opens a viewing portal and show a pair of giant monsters brawling vicously against each other with the horned one looking to soon be the victorious. As the watch the black one shoot a pulse of energy waves and blow up the blue and silver one, Zeus raise an eyebrow in question. "From what we gather, Perseus might have gained the new body upon entering the dimenson," Artemis continues looking at the trumpeting beast with fascinated eyes while Athena looks down at the ground and away from the angry glare of Poseidon, "from what Hades says, Perseus Jackson died and his soul and blood went into his new body." "What the hades is he?" Annabeth Chase and Grover Underwood gasp when they hear the angry and heartbroken voice of Poseidon. Athena look over at Artemis who has a bounce in her step, "He is currently a type of creature known as a kaiju, meaning strange beast although most people thinks it means giant monster."

"He is a gomora, a subterranian omnivorous kaiju," Athena looks at Perseus as he turns to continue eating the previous carcass, "from what I can tell, kaiju of that dimenson don't die of old age and he's not young by any strech seeing how he isn't baby size which would be human size." "And by how any humans that tried to land on the planet seem to not notice it," Apollo rubs his chin, not noticing everyones attention, "I would take a guess that he still remember somethings." "Since you also notice the Mist surrounding the planet," as Athena turn to him, she notice a distortance in the air, "you must realize that...Apollo, what is that?" Eyes glance over as a rift opens and pulls the figures in the throne room towards it. As they are force in, a couple more rifts like it form and takes some people.

Planet Boris:Perseus's Lair

Annabeth Chase groans as she opens her eyes to see darkness around her, "...ouuuch, I think I landed on my coccyx." As she stands, she see humanoid shapes and walk over before helping each of the gods and Grover up. Taking notice of the hanging stalagtites, she prepares to say something before a flash of light distract her, "Everyone, I think there's something here." As each of the deities glance over, they notice the ground shaking before them as a large mole like kaiju with grey armor and red spikes and claws. The most telling thing noticed was the five claw mark on its hide causing Artemis and Apollo to stiffen, "Its wound looks fresh."

A loud trumpet noise is heard as the green eyed gomora charge forward and bit down on the injuried kaiju's neck with a loud crack. As the angross collaspe, the group look to see the gomora's skin is cover in a mess of scars that ranged from old to fresh. As Artemis nock an arrow in her bow, Annabeth walks out to the surprise of everyone, "Chase, get back over here or you might-" The words are cut off as the black gomora gaze down at the half-blood before it. As the kaiju leans down, the group is surprise at the deep voice that echo from its mouth, "Annabeth, is that truly you?"

Slowly nodding, Annabeth reaches up and feels the earth like skin carefully with tears in her eyes, "Hey, Seaweed Brain, how is it going?" "Alright I guess," Perseus snorts and knocks her down, where she whine about the smell of rotting flesh, "just hit my two and a half millenia birth date." "First seaspawn I have two words for you, breath mints," hearing the chuckling kaiju, she rose up and start to climb up his hand, "and second, how did you reach two thousand five hundred in a year?" An eyeridge rose as he brings her up to his shoulder, "Where you're at in the multiverse it's been a year, here... it's been a long time since I arrived."

Before she can continue, a fimilar echoing trumpet is heard and gets a growl from the black skin kaiju as Perseus place her on the ground, "Stay hidden, Chase." As she hid behind a stalagmite, a red and orange gomora breaks through a wall, "I smell little ones, my hunger always at high, where are the humans." "Gyuki, my brethen," Percy bellows while slamming his tail against the ground dangerously close to the satyr and gods, "if there were humans here, I would kill you and keep them for myself." As the group of grecian descent held their breath, the red gomora sniffs the air again before giving a curious look, "The scent of ancients, not of this or most worlds, what have you welcome?" "You don't need to know, now leave before i take my fangs to your gullet," Percy snaps as Gyuki narrow his eyes before snorting and leaving, not wanting to chance conflict.

After a time, Perseus lays down on his stomach while Annabeth runs out, "Can all kaiju talk, where are we, is it safe to go outside, can you help us?" "Calm down Wise girl," Percy chuckles before yawning widely and revealing savage teeth, "only some kaiju talk, we're currently on planet Boris, you could chance it if you want...and how can I help Mount Olympus?" While Annabeth explain what happens at camp, the others slowly edge out from cover. Perseus sigh deeply, intentionally ignoring Artemis aiming her bow at him, before gazing over the smaller beings, "I would give you my blood if I could but I can't." "And why not," Ares snark at him until his gaze cause him to flinch back, "if you don't mind."

"I don't bleed the blood of the sea," Perseus look over to see the blank face of Zeus although he could sense the sky god's pain, "when I died, the only thing that remain was my mind." As the grecian look down in ponder, he grabs their attention with a finger snap, "But...I think I know another way." "There was a time when I was human here and once I realized that my body was dying, I made three items from the skeleton of different kaijus," as he scratch his chin, the other gaze turn hopeful. "The eleking's trident gave me an incredible boost to my water power and gave me control of lightning, the golza's fist gave me control of and made me immune to all form of heat, fire and all things concerning burning," as one, the group blink at the abilities some of which could be overpower in the right or wrong hands, "lastly, there is the vakishim's crown which allows the wearer to have any ten wishes granted." "If the vakishim's crown grants any ten wishes," Athena ask slowly, seeing something that no one else did, "why didn't you wish not to die?"

Silence trail after such before Perseus sigh while rubbing him his brow, "...Of course you realize that, the reason for THAT is so simple I'm surprise you haven't figure that out." "I...have an idea but-" "You want me to comfirm it," nodding his head, Perseus sigh deeply, "the answer was that I realize how...frail my old body was and decided to make a new one." "Also, I was the only human on the planet and I didn't know about the other worlds until last millenium plus I didn't want the reminder of things not possible," sighing longingly, Perseus lays down again before snoring began. Annabeth push, hit and scream but he continues in deep slumber before she huffs and curls by his side, "Guess well have to get him to help tomorrow."

"What I'm worried about," Hermes spoke up, surprising many because he had been silent since Luke's betrayal, "is if we got pulled here-" "What's stopping the others as well," Iris interrupts as her eyes grew distant before closing, "and I think your right, I can see the childern and Chiron...as well as others."

Planet Boris: Cave Entrance

"Has anyone seen Jackson," Artemis cuts her gaze from the morning sky to the others, more so to Annabeth who is watching something with binoculars to the east. Looking in the same direction, Artemis saw a herd of brown bipedal kaiju with horns and pincers milling about. As a young one edge close to a young tree, Artemis notices the movement of the earth before the black gomora lunge out with a bellow. Clasping on the throat, he push the smaller kaiju down and bite down before a loud crunch causes its life to end. "An interesting tactic, like a crocodile attacking a wilderbeast," Artemis watch as Perseus chew large clumps of flesh, all the while glancing around with a stiff stance, "though why does he seem so...tense?"

A roar echo loudly, causing the other sodoras to flee in terror, as a grey and blue kaiju with a forward curving horn and long ears stomps forward, "MY MEAT! GIVE! MINE!" "NO! MINE MEAT!" another kaiju with a foward facing horn only with a dark gray coloration roar on the other side of Perseus. The greeks' eyes widen as they watch the three kaiju roar at each other over the still warm carcass, "An earthtron and a kelbeam...in my hunTING GROUND!" Perseus growls deeply before charging at the kelbeam, letting his tail knock into the face of the earthtron with a savage roar. The group could feel the earth shake as the earthtron fall all the while Ares grins at the trio of beast, "Damn look at them go, haha!"

Athena see the smallish form of a black kaiju with a hook horn on its head edging to the carcass. Before it can grab a chunk, it yelps as the ears of the kelbeam are toss at it as it scurries back. Perseus push the kaiju back and slams his tail into its side before turning and charging at the earthtron. His nasal horn piercing the creature's stomach, his other horns pulse a ghostly green color while the other kaiju tremble and cause the rival to start exploding in random places. Turning and tossing the corspe at the kelbeam causing the two to explode, he turns to see the smaller kaiju paralyzed in fear, "...what do you think you're doing?"

A chirp catches his attention, Perseus looks over the ridge at a human size gomess getting the elder to take a defensive stance. After a tense minute between two giants, Perseus rips the arm from the sodora and throw them at the gomess's feet, "...get lost." As he continues eating, the gomess picks up the body parts while keeping an eye on the taller kaiju before heading over to the infant. Seeing the fight was over, the greeks teleported nearby the eating kaiju, "Damn punk, when did you learn those moves?" "When you live for two and a half millenia, you try to learn something," Perseus crush a femur in his jaw as Artemis look in satisfaction at the skeleton. "That must be fascinating," making eye contact with the tall kaiju, Artemis begins to climb his back, "do you often hunt or is you trying to impress us?"

As the other climb on his back, Perseus turns north and march while ignoring the various scavengers swooping to feed, "Boris is a deadly planet, to where even the plant life can kill a being in a fight." "How does that work," Grover spoke up as he watch a pair of ant like kaiju carry pieces away, life on the planet?" Before he can answer, Perseus snaps his head south and narrows his eyes, "Everything wants to kill something else after all, this is a lawless planet." "Black Gomora oldest kaiju, me kills you and gets bestest breeda," a pale green kaiju known as a red king walks around the mountai, "than me eats tiny folks on back and gets smarta!" Before the red king can approach, the trumpeting roar of a gomora show Gyuki rising from the ground between them, "Sorry young little, eating the grecian gods, a foolish errand."

 "...It's been a while, an agreement has arise," Perseus turn towards the red king while steps next to his sibling and nods, getting one back, "foolish red dies well."  The two gomoras charge forward as the greek gods teleport to a cliff edge, watching alongside a large pale green bird kaiju with a red plumage, "I sensing a pattern here." "What strange creatures you are," the large bird kaiju tilts her head questioning at the grecian who reach for their weapons, "you remind me of these strange beings, humans if I remember correctly, from some time ago." "It's been so long since I've seen them," the kaiju turn her head skyward and step back as the red king's arm fell close to her before kicking it away, "but I guess it's a good thing...the specie was always frail little things, always needing saving." "Why you think I keep sending them from this world," the group watch as the two gomora walk over from the torn up carcass, "it's been some time Metilda what two, three hundred years?"

The litra smile kindly before grooming her plumage, "Five hundred and thirty, Perseus...I see you made amends with your clutchmate." "Friendship has long pass, a common enemy here, chance not forgiveness," Gyuki glares at Perseus who rolls his eyes uncaringly. As the gomora walks away, Artemis looks Percy in the eye, "Who is Gyuki to you?" "My baby brother who was upset that I kept sending humans back to Earth," seeing the greek's shocked face, he turn towards the female kaiju before him, "Metilda, I need a...favor." "Have gotten one of those in years," the bird kaiju chrips happily before walking closer, "is it another...experiment?"

A dark blush cross his face as the greeks, excluding Annabeth and Grover, try to understand what that meant before he clear his throat, "N-no not that...could you watch out for more humans, I have a feeling that these aren't the only ones here." As the avian kaiju took off, Annabeth smirk dangerously, "So...these experiments?" "Drop it, I was younger and she was the only kaiju who wanted something to do with me," seeing the chuckling faces of the other greeks, he snorts before turning north once again, "come on, it'll take some time to get there." As the group began their treck, they are unaware of the forces ahead of them.

Well, here is another prologue to another fanfiction. Hope enjoy and have a good day.

End
file.